PREFACE

The 'Jaina Penance' deals with the rules laid down in the Jaina Religion for the purification of different kinds of individuals, who wish to follow the Path of the Great Conquerors (JINAS). It is based on the authority of the "Prāyaścitta Samuohchaya," the authorship of which is ascribed to Saint Gurudasji, a Jaina āchārya (Leader of Saints) of the Digambara sect.

The author's age is not known ; in fact no Digambara Saint is known to have borne that name. Perhaps he only describes himself as guru-das (the attendant or slave of his preceptor)! There is an ancient commentary on the work which was composed by Śrī Nandi Guru. But who this saint was is not known. According to Mr. Nathu Ram Premi (see the preface to the Prāyaścitta Sangraha), he might have been the Preceptor (guru) of Saint Śrī Chandra who composed his "Purāṇa-sāra" in 1070 Samvat Era (=1014 A.D.). He was called Śrī Nandi. He would thus be living in the 10th century A.D. There was another Śrī Nandi Saint. His pupil was Nayanandi whose pupil Nemichandra was the preceptor of Saint Basunandi who is known to have lived in the 12th century of the Samvat Era. Probably the preceptor of Saint Śrī Chandra and of Śrī Nayanandi was the one and the same Śrī Nandi. If these conclusions be correct then the commentary referred to would be deemed to have been composed in the 10th century A.D., so that the original work must be at least about a thousand years old.

The book has been translated into Hindi by Sjt. Panna Lalji Soni, who was at one time the chief Pandit of the Gopal Siddhanta Vidyālaya, Morena (Gwalior State). The present work is chiefly based on this Hindi translation. I am, however, giving the Sanskrit text in Part III.

The original work is composed in poetry which seems to have been much in vogue at the time of its composition, and which is, no doubt, responsible for the lack of precision which is found to obscure the interpretation of some of the ślokas (couplets). The Hindi translation is not critical. However, the number of the verses that actually resist elucidation is very very small. An endeavour has been made here to get at the true teaching underlying the various obscure texts, and I have consulted several saints and learned men on the subject to ascertain the true reading.

It has, however, not been found necessary to enter into an elaborate discussion of these obscure points; I am merely content to give what seems to me to be the true interpretation of the various texts. A part of the aforesaid element of confusion has, no doubt, also arisen from the jumbling together of the diverse texts in an indiscriminate manner, which might be due to careless copying or some other similar cause.

The "Prāyaścitta Samuchchaya" consists of two parts, the book proper and a chūlikā or supplement. The verses of the two parts are separately numbered in the original. In the references I have adhered to the numbering of the author, and indicated the book proper by merely its śloka number (thus Ś. 101. Ś. 159, etc.), and the Chūlikā by the abbreviation Ch. (thus Ch. 101, Ch. 159 and so forth).

A knowledge of the rules applicable to the householder and the saint is presupposed in the reader if he will appreciate the merit of the penances prescribed and of the fine distinctions on which they are grounded. Brief explanatory notes have been given in some places to elucidate difficult and obscure points, but it is not possible to incorporate the whole of the Jaina Charitra Code (rules relating to disciplinary conduct) in the present work.

In the Appendix I have given the penances provided for the householders' transgressions in the "Prāyaścitta Grantha" which is included in the "Prāyaścitta Sangraha," published by the Maniokchand Digambara Jaina Grantha Mālā Samiti of Bombay. This book professes to be from the pen of the great Bhaṭṭakalankadeva whose name is a household word in the Jaina community. But, as the learned secretary of the M.D.J.G. Samiti observes, it does not appeal to one's mind as an authoritative work, and certainly it could not have been composed by such a profound Jaina scholar as Akalankadeva whose authority it seeks to claim for itself. Its composition would seem to have been influenced by the spirit of the latter-day commercialized Hinduism, as is evident from such penances as the gift of kine, flowers, hetel-leaves and gold, which are quite opposed to the teaching of Jainism.

As for the two other books on the subject, namely, the "Chheda Pinda" and the "Chheda Śāstra" which are included in the "Prāyaścitta Sangraha" already referred to, help has been taken from them in the compilation of the work on which this treatise is grounded, and no further reference to them seems necessary or called for under the circumstances.

CHAPTER I

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

Prāyaśchitta is the cause of the destruction of the evil effect of karmas. All serious-minded aspirants are ever eager to preserve the purity of the mind undefiled, and at once resort to measures to remove the taint, if a blemish is noticed by them in their conduct, that is, thought, word or deed.

Prāyaśchitta is very pleasing to the generality of men, especially to the community of the pious householders (laity). Disciplinary vows are useless in the absence of the rectifying penance; and no conduct can be deemed bright or purposeful whose faults are not noted nor corrected. In short, without penance there can be no proper conduct; without proper conduct there can be no dharma (religion or piety); and without dharma salvation cannot be attained.¹

The word prāyaśchitta is derived from prāyo, the people or pious folk, and chitta, mind: hence what is pleasing to the mind of the pious folk is prāyaśchitta. It may also be derived from prāyao, tapaścharaṇa (asceticism), and chitta, establishing ; hence it means the establishing of the mind properly in the observance of the rules relating to austerities. According to another derivation, it comes from prāya, the community of saints, and chitta, that which attracts the heart, and signifies the action that is pleasing to the heart of a saint. Prāya also signifies a fault, and chitta is its atonement or eradication. Thus, prāyaśchitta is intended for the purification of the soul and for the eradication of the taint of evil from the heart.¹

Confession is enjoined on all people who have embarked on the voyage of self-conquest by means of disciplinary vows. It has been said that one should not conceal one's faults from a doctor, a preceptor and a benevolent king.²

Prāyaśchitta has two aspects, the spiritual or higher (nischaya) and the physical or lower (vyavahāra). The nischaya is the prāyaśchitta proper in reality. It consists in washing away the taint of evil by self-contemplation, that is to say, by immersion in the true Self, so to speak! All shortcomings are washed away speedily, that way, by the ablutions with the purifying 'Vision of the Self.' The longing to wash away the stain is itself, in reality, the greatest penance.¹ Confession itself is half the amends.² What is really meant is a heartfelt regret for the deed, which implies a determination not to do it again in the future. Unless the regret and the determination to refrain from the sinful act are present in the mind, confession will not be of much help. It should be noted that the saint endowed with the Right Faith will not be content till he succeeds in eradicating the very source of evil action from his heart, since he knows and fears the consequences of the evil path and the loss of dharma.³

Thus confession itself is the vyavahāra penance, and the symbol of the presence of the niśchaya regret. If it is omitted deliberately, that means that the saint is still averse to 'lowering' himself that way, which is consistent only with the presence and activity of the element of pride, itself a bad and undesirable trait in the saintly character. As a matter of fact, only those men are considered great who cheerfully long to perform expiation for their shortcomings.⁴ They excel as leaders and attain to heavens and ultimately also to nirvāna.

Thus, the niśchaya and the vyavahāra forms of penances go together, hand in hand. The type of the former determines the amount of the latter. Where it is present in abundance, the latter will only be nominally enforced; otherwise chheda (de-gradation), mūla (re-ordination) and parihāra (expulsion) even may have to be resorted to, in severe cases of breach of discipline.

All kinds of penances are to be freely used, subject to the conditions of time, place, individual capacity and the like.¹ For the first fault, however, it is not usual to give the extreme penalty, though there may be cases that demand even this kind of treatment, e.g., the ravishing of the wife of one's king, or engineering a revolution. But no hard and fast rules can be laid down which will govern all cases. Discretion must be employed in meting out punishment to the delinquents in every case,² and the proper penance should be determined carefully, with due regard to the conditions and circumstances attending the transgression.³ Above all it should not be forgotten that the object is not punishment but reclamation, and the safeguarding of the interests of the sinner and the community of the saints.

As a general rule, a strong man should be given any form of penance; he who is nervous or easily upset should be given that form of penance only which is calculated to help him in ridding himself of his lack of composure. Weakly persons should be given what is helpful in regaining strength or at least what will not constitute a drain on their already poor store of energy; those who are deficient both in regard to physical strength and mental composure should be treated even more lightly than the above.¹

No one is immune from penance—not even the highest saintly dignitary, nor the āchārya (Leader of saints) himself. But their faults (confessions) are not to be published to the world.² Where the Leader has himself been guilty of a fault he should undergo the penance secretly if his evil action was not noticed by any one; otherwise publicly, as in the case of the ordinary saints.³

If the āchārya is himself required to undergo penitential expiation he should convene a conference of his sangha, and instruct them as to the rules applicable to his case and invite them to determine the amount of the penance for him, or he may determine the penalty himself, if the sangha be untrained.

It is not possible to frame a handy code of penances that will actually cover every case. The general rules, if applied discriminately, will, however, be found to meet all cases that arise in the lives of the truly pious people, and would present sufficient guidance for all emergencies. Guidance may also be taken from the penances prescribed for similar breaches of the saintly 'etiquette.'¹ To be absolutely just one will have to notice all the various shades of sinful mentality whose number is legion.² No one can be expected to emerge successfully from a quest for the right penance for every shade and grade of the sinner, under the circumstances. It is, therefore, very very essential that the Leader should be a practical man, who does not delight in needless hair-splitting but who is able to handle a situation in a judicious and practical manner, there and then.

The Leader-āchārya is alone qualified to prescribe the proper penance. No one else in the sangha (community of saints) should usurp that function. The āchārya himself should be a well-trained person, and one who is endowed with great wisdom and experience and the knowledge of the actual conditions of existence in the land. He should have a well-controlled nature, and should be possessed of a capacity for the judicial function that he is required to exercise, in regard to the transgressions by his disciples and followers. No one who is not so endowed is qualified to hear confessions or to apportion the penance.³

CHAPTER II

TYPES OF PENANCE

Expiatory penances are of ten kinds as follows:—

- (1) Ālochanā (confession);
- (2) Pratikramaṇa (blaming oneself for the fault committed);
- (3) Tadubhaya (ālochanā+pratikramaṇa combined);
- (4) Viveka or tyāga (giving up or refraining from the use of certain articles of food, if they tend to excite passions, or are suspected to be impure, or are eaten in forgetfulness of a previous vow or resolve to avoid them);
- (5) Vyutsarga (performing kāyotsarga for a fixed period, and remaining unmoving in one posture all the time);
- (6) Tapa (fasting or imposing restrictions on the taking of food);
- (7) Chheda (degrading);
- (8) Mūla (re-ordination, i.e., complete loss of rank);

- (9) Parihāra also termed anupasthāna, anupasthāpanā and pinchha (humiliating, or expulsion, for a time, from the sangha i.e., community);
- (10) Śraddhāna (re-admission into the faith).

The above are all the recognized forms of penance. In addition to them there is another kind of penance which is known as vaiyāvṛitya (service or nursing). This is comprised in the parihāra penance, according to strict classification. The form known as pāranchika signifies expulsion, full and complete, and is but another word for parihāra. Parihāra is termed pinchha because of the person who is undergoing it being required to hold his feather whisk (the pichhi) in front of him, as a mark whereby it may be known that he is undergoing that form of penance.

Bathing is recommended in case of contact with an unclean person, e. g., a pariah.¹ Elsewhere one kāyotsarga is provided as the proper penalty for such a contact.² Bathing is said to be of three kinds: with water, with the holy mantras (recitation) and with disciplinary vows.³

CHAPTER III

EXPLANATION OF CERTAIN TECHNICALITIES

Āchāmla = the taking of food consisting only of one kind of grain with water, and includes rice-water, with or without grains of rice soaked in it.

Ekasthāna = means either (1) eating only from one dish, pot or pan, and only as much as has been taken out at one time, whether it be only a tea-spoonful or more, in the case of pulses, vegetables and the like, and only one roti, or puri, etc., in the case of more substantial things, or (2) going without food or discontinuing the process of eating, if one has to shift one's position from any cause. If the position has to be shifted before the releasing of what is termed veerya mudrā there is no harm ; but afterwards food is forbidden even though eating has not commenced as yet.

Note.—A saint places his right hand on his right shoulder when starting for his food. The position is called veerya mudrā. It is released only when the saint has made up his mind to accept the food, and after he is satisfied that it is unobjectionable in every way. He is free to shift his position if the one he has taken up is, or becomes, unsuitable from any cause; but not after he has released the mudrā. If the necessity for shifting arise subsequent to the act of release he must go without food at the time altogether, though not one morsel has been taken by him.

Nirvikṛiti = unsavoury, that is, rasa-less food.

The rasas are: milk, curd, ghee, oil, sugar and salt.

Upavāsa = a fast.

Purumandala = refraining from food till after the mid-day sāmāyika (i.e., 1-15 p.m.)

Kalyāṇaka = one each of the quintette of āchāmla, nirvikṛiti, purumandala, ekas-thāna and upavāsa.

4 Kalyāṇakas = 1 bhinnamāsa.

5 Kalyāṇakas = 1 gurumāsa.

5 Kalyāṇakas minus the nirvikṛitis, āchāmlas, or upavāsas = 1 laghumāsa.

According to the Chheda Śāstra, a laghumāsa consists of 5 upavāsas and 5 each of three other items out of the remaining four. A Laghumāsa also signifies the observance of the pancha-kalyāṇaka with regular intervals.

5 Kalyāṇakas = svasthāna = māsika = mūla guṇa = mūla and gurūmāsa. A Pancha kalyāṇaka is the continuous observance without interruption of a kalyāṇaka five times.

Ṣaṣṭha = 1 two-days' fast with only one meal each on the day preceding the commencement and the day following the observance.

Kshamaṇa = upavāsa.

Chāturamāsa = 4 pancha kalyāṇakas, or continuous fasting, on alternate days, for four months.

Mithyākāra = (literally, it may be annulled), a form of regret ; dissociation with the result of a sin committed by oneself; "may this action of mine be annulled !"

Nyama = daily self-examination for the faults committed. The evening nyama commences before the disk of the sun has half disappeared below the horizon, and the morning one should end before the dawn.

Locha = fasting, with regular intervals, for the period of a locha. Locha signifies plucking out the hair, which is recommended to be performed after every two, three or four months. In the case of a short locha (with a duration of two months) a meal is allowed after every three days' fast ; in that of the middling one, a meal is allowed after every two days' fast, and in the case of the longer locha alternately with a fast.

Salutation mantram = णमो अर्हंताणं, णमो सिद्धाणं, णमो आइरियाणं, णमो उवज्झायणं, णमो लोये सव्व साहुणं ।

(Namo Arhantāṇam, ṇamo Siddhāṇam, ṇamo Āīriyāṇam, ṇamo Uvajjhāyāṇam, ṇamo loye savva sāhuṇam). It means:

I salute the Arhant ;

I salute the Siddha ;

I salute the Āchāryas (Leaders of Saints);

I salute the Upādhyāyas (Teacher Saints);

I salute all Sādhus (holy Saints) !

- 1 Kāyotsarga = recitation of the holy Salutation mantram nine times, without shifting one's position, and keeping the mind, speech and the body under control.

1 Devasika Kāyotsarga = 108 Salutation mantras.

1 Pākshika „ = 300 „ „

1 Chaturmāsika „ = 400 „ „

1 Samvatsarika „ = 500 „ „

CHAPTER V

TYPES OF MEN

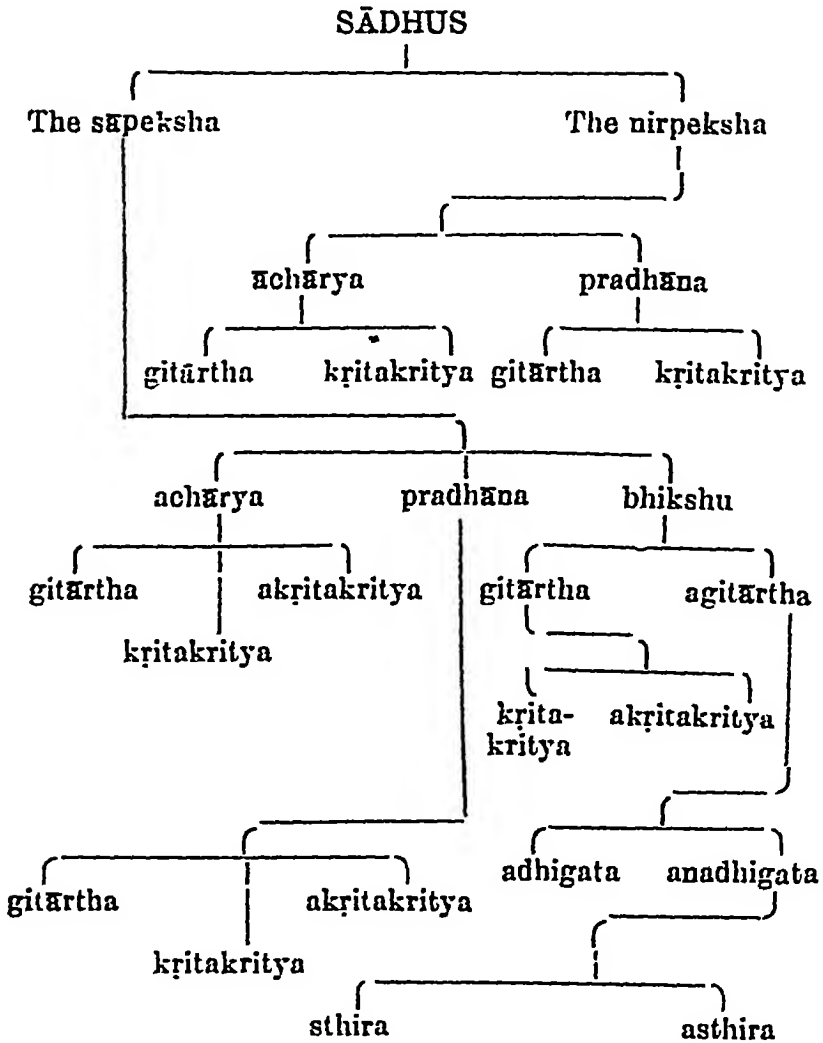

There are many types of men. They have been described as follows :—

1. the śraddhāvāna (devoted to religion),
2. the aśraddhāvāna (not devoted, that is, indifferent to religion),
3. the mṛidu (meek),
4. the garvi (proud), who is either proud of his rank, that is seniority, or of his austerities.
5. the gitārtha (endowed with much philosophical wisdom),
6. the agitārtha (not endowed with philosophical wisdom),
7. the alpavita or alpaśruta (having slight scriptural knowledge),
8. the durbala (who is physically weak),
9. the nīchasanghatah (endowed with an inferior system of bony formation),
10. the sarvapuruṣa (endowed with one of the higher types of bony formation and well-qualified otherwise, except for the lack of control of sleep),

11. the ātmasmartha (who does not wish for vaiyāvṛitya (service) but is not disturbed otherwise by the expiation prescribed),
12. the ubhayatara (who also wishes for the vaiyāvṛitya),
13. the anyatara (who voluntarily undertakes the other also when required to perform either tapa or vaiyāvṛitya alone),
14. the anubhaya (who is unable to perform either vaiyāvṛitya or tapa, and who has, therefore, to be given the milder forms of penance, āchāmla and like),
15. the paratara (who is greatly terrified with tapa, and who, therefore, prays for the vaiyāvṛitya),
16. the āchārya (leaders of saints themselves),
17. the pradhāna (other eminent saints),
18. the bhikṣu (ordinary saints).

According to another classification, saints are divided into two classes, namely, the sāpeksha and the nirpeksha. The sāpekshas are those who expect compassion or kindness from their leader; the nirpekshas do not expect either. These may be further subdivided as follows :—

The explanation of the technical terms used here is as follows:—

The gitārtha = the illumined philosopher or the knower of the entirety of the scriptural wisdom.

The agitārtha = the unillumined ; the unenlightened ; he who is not endowed with philosophical insight.

The kṛitakṛitya = given to preaching.

The akṛitakṛitya = he who does not preach.

The adhigata = who is ignorant of the scriptural wisdom, but is able to think for himself.*

The anadhigata = the unlearned and unthinking personage who only knows what he has heard from his preceptor.

The sthira = he who is firmly established in faith.

The asthira = who is unbalanced in respect of the rules of right conduct.

Men have also been divided into two rough divisions according as they observe the root or foundation principles (mūla guṇas) or are able to keep their elaborations (uttara guṇas) also. The former are called the mūla-guṇa-dhāri (observers of the root virtues) and the latter the uttara-guṇa-dhāri.

Of the above classes of men the asthira are the weakest. They do not understand the distinction between the proper and the improper, the more sinful and the less sinful, the commendable and what is not commendable, and are only given that form of penance which they themselves select, their attachment to the Path being enough expiation in their condition (Ś. 180—181).

The nirpeksha saints are ever vigilant and thoughtful; they immediately wipe off the stain of error, if any, by proper penance, undertaken in the presence of their own Self (Atma=soul). They observe the eight kinds of suddhi (see Sannyāsa Dharma, pp. 56—60). They are all great yogis, endowed with the higher type of bony-formation and gifted with supreme composure; they do not trouble others for expiation and are competent to wash off the stain of evil action by themselves. They are generally purified by the mere confessing of a fault to themselves, though they may like to go through any and all other forms of expiation of their own free will. The nirpeksha may also confess to their preceptor and accept all kinds of expiation from him.

With reference to the garci (proud) class of transgressors, he who is proud of his austerities and would prefer tapa-penance (fasting and the like) should be given the chheda (if that be the expiation merited) and vice versa. The mridu (meek) whose excessively unassuming nature does not suffer him to feel the humiliation involved in chheda (saluting freshly ordained saints first which is against the rule of seniority) should not be given that form of penance nor the mūla; he should be put on tapa (fasting, etc.) Similarly, he who has no faith in the efficacy of chheda (degrading) and mūla (re-ordination) should be put on tapa.

The sāpeksha confess their transgressions before their āchārya, and are given the first six forms of penance (namely, ālochanā, pratikramana, ubhaya, viveka, vyutsarga and tapa); they do not need the remaining four, that is, chheda, mūla, anupasthāpanā and pāranchika.

The agitārtha (unillumined) does not deserve the sthāpanā group which comprise the chheda, the mūla and the parihāra. According to the practice of another order of Saints, he should be given nine out of the ten forms of penance, leaving out the parihāra (which they think is what is signified by the term sthāpanā).

The alpaśruta (or alpavita) should be given the pancha kalyānaka usually. Even if he has merited the parihāra (expulsion), he should only be given either the chheda or the mūla penance.

Regard must also be had to the penitent's bodily strength and mental composure in meting out expiation. The strong in body should be given all the ten kinds of penances. He who is easily upset or unsettled should be given such penances to do as will actually go to impart strength of will to him. The physically weak should be asked to do only that kind of penance which will keep up his strength. He who is lacking in bodily strength as well as in firmness of mind should be given even milder forms of penance than the last-named.

The man endowed with any of the last three types of bony formation (see the Practical Dharma), with bodily strength and much wisdom should be given all forms of tapa-penance—fasting and the like; but he should be given the mūla in place of the parihāra penance (if such be merited by him).

The sarva-purṇa is fit to be given all forms of penances. If he has, however, merited the pāraṇchika form, he should be given only the anupasthāna (parihāra). Even the anupasthāna penance he keeps in his own community (sangha) of saints and has not to be sent away to another community.

The wise yogi who is endowed with the learning comprised in nine purvas (departments of scriptural lore), imbued with faith, devoid of the sense of attachment and aversion for the worldly things, contented, not given to preaching, and filled with pure thoughts,—may be given the anupasthāna (expulsion) penance. The saint undergoing such a penance is, however, allowed to approach the leader of the gaṇa (community of saints) for asking him a question and for confession. He salutes and otherwise shows respect towards other saints ; but they do not show him respect nor offer salutation.

Pāranchika penance is given to those saints who are endowed with great strength, with the higher type of bony formation, with faith, composure, renunciation, purity and other excellent virtues and who have also 'conquered' sleep. They differ from the sarva-purṇa only in so far as they are fully enlightened, given to preaching and do not need to sleep. Such a saint will not lose his spiritual purity even if he have to live away from the sangha (community of saints).

He who is guilty of the grossest of sins such as disrespect to the Tirthamkara, deserves the pāranchika (complete expulsion). He should go and live in places where there are no co-religionists of his. Really, pāranchika is only intended for him who is endowed with the very best and strongest type of bony-formation (the first, namely, bajra-vṛiṣaḥṇa nārācha)*, who is of strong character, enlightened with the knowledge of the ten purvas (departments of scriptural lore) and a preacher as well as the conqueror of the tendency to sleep. Such a person will not be 'lost' altogether even if he is turned out of the country and the sangha.

CHAPTER VI

THE SINFUL DISPOSITION

The following peculiarities of disposition are found to characterize the psychology of transgressors. A man would yield either under the stress of external circumstances (illness, compulsion and the like) or without such external stress; he may commit only one act of transgression or go on doing so; he may care to follow the Teaching of Truth, or he may not care to do so; and he may resist the downward step, or yield without resisting. This gives us a list of eight elements, or traits of character, which may be tabulated in four rows, as follows (the sign of + marking the element of goodness and that of — its antithesis):—

+ Yielding under stress (sahetuka).	1.	— yielding without external stress (asahetuka).
+ Stopping after one fault (sakṛitakāri).	2.	— committing more than one fault (asakṛitakāri).
+ Longing to follow the teaching of truth (sānuvichī).	3.	— not longing to follow the teaching of truth (asānuvichī).
+ Resisting the temptation (prayatnavāna).	4.	— not resisting the temptation (aprayatnavāna).

By combining these in different groups we get no less than 16 types of the transgressing disposition.

These are shown in the following tabulated form together with a set of arithmetical symbols to facilitate reference, the position of the symbols representing the row and the symbols (+ or -) themselves the affirmative or negative elements of character.

1. External stress, one fault, longing to live upto truth, resisting + + + +
2. No external stress, one fault, longing to live upto truth, resisting ... - + + +
3. External stress, repeated slips, longing to live upto truth, resisting ... + - + +
4. No external stress, repeated slips, longing to live upto truth, resisting ... - - + +
5. External stress, one fault, not longing to live upto truth, resisting ... + + - +
6. No external stress, one fault, not longing to live upto truth, resisting ... - + - +
7. External stress, repeated slips, not longing to live upto truth, resisting ... + - - +
8. No external stress, repeated slips, not longing to live upto truth, resisting ... - - - +
9. External stress, one fault, longing to live upto truth, not resisting ... + + + -
10. No external stress, one fault, longing to live upto truth, not resisting ... - + + -
11. External stress, repeated slips, longing to live upto truth, not resisting ... + - + -
12. No external stress, repeated slips, longing to live upto truth, not resisting ... - - + -
13. External stress, one fault, not longing to live upto truth, not resisting ... + + - -

14. No external stress, one fault, not longing
to live upto truth, not resisting ... - + - -
15. External stress, repeated slips, not longing
to live upto truth, not resisting ... + - - -
16. No external stress, repeated slips, not longing to live upto truth, not resisting... - - - -

Of these, the first is the best disposition, deserving of the lightest penance, and the last, the worst, which must be dealt with severely if the transgressor is to be reclaimed. Suitable penance should be prescribed for the remaining types, according to their enormity or mildness.

Generally speaking, the three affirmative elements in the last three out of the four rows are indicative of goodness of disposition ; but in combination with the second element in the first row—yielding without external pressure—their value is considerably lessened. The three opposite traits in these rows naturally go to weaken the argument in favour of the natural goodness of the disposition. They have to be eradicated firmly, by severe penance. The total number of the combinations of the elements in the last three rows is eight, which may be put down as follows :—

1. One fault, longing to live upto truth, resisting.
2. Repeated slips, longing to live up to truth,
resisting
3. One fault, no longing to live upto truth,
resisting

4. Repeated slips, no longing to live upto truth,
resisting
5. One fault, longing to live upto truth, non-resisting
6. Repeated slips, longing to live up to truth,
non-resisting
7. One fault, no longing to live upto truth,
non-resisting
8. Repeated slips, no longing to live upto truth,
non-resisting

This shorter table of eight types will apply where the circumstances do not admit of the application of the principle of external compulsion or its antithesis or where severer penance is indicated, as will be seen later.

From another point of view, five elements have to be taken into consideration in determining the nature of the penance. These are: whether the transgressor is devoted to religion (priya dharma) or not (apriya dharma); whether he is endowed with much knowledge (bahu jñāna) or not (alpa jñāna); whether he committed the fault under external stress (sahetuka) or not (asahetuka); whether the transgression was confined to a single act (sakṛitakāri) or to a series of acts (asakṛitakāri); whether he is straightforward (rijubhāva) or not (arijubhāva). These should be arranged, as before, in five rows, and numbered, in the manner already pointed out. In this way we get $2^5 = 2 \times 2 \times 2 \times 2 \times 2 = 32$ types of sinful mentality. Naturally the penance for the best type which is to be symbolically represented by five plus marks (+ + + + +) will be the lightest; but it will be the heaviest for the opposite kind (to be represented by the sign of minus repeated five times, thus — — — — —).

The technical term for the types (as well as for rows) is aksha; their tabulation is prastāra; the determination of the aksha from its position in the table is nasṭa; and the determination of the position when the aksha is known is uddisṭa.

The 32 types are as follows:—

- | | |

31. Devoted, little learning, no external pressure, repeated slips, not straight-forward + ----
32. Indifferent, little learning, no external pressure, repeated slips, not straight-forward -----

The best method of remembering this table is to note that of the five features which figure in it, the first occurs alternately down the column; the second occurs in groups of two at a time, followed by its antithetical trait for two steps; the third occurs in groups of four at a time, followed by the antithesis to the extent of four steps; the fourth alternates after eight times, and the fifth, after sixteen steps. In a tabulated form the arrangement may be described as follows :

- (1) First column + - + - + - + - + - + - + - + - + - + - + -
- (2) 2nd " + + - - + + - - + + - - + + - - + + - - + + - -
- (3) 3rd " + + + + - - - - + + + + - - - - + + + + - - - -
- (4) 4th " + + + + + + + + - - - - - - + + + + + + + + - - - -
- (5) 5th , + + + + + + + + + + + + + + - - - - - - - - - - - -

It should be known that the sign $+$ (plus) in the above diagram stands for the affirmative trait, and $-$ (minus) for its antithesis.

The rule for finding out the traits of character in any given position (that is, the nasta) is to posit the number of the position the combination of which is to be ascertained and to divide it by the number 2 for the trait of the first column which will be determined by the remainder, which may be one or nil. If the remainder be one, the attribute in question is of the affirmative type, otherwise its opposite. For the next column add one to the quotient if there be a remainder, but nothing if there be no remainder. The figure arrived at in this way is to be divided by 2 again, and the trait for the 2nd column to be determined as before. In this way the process is to be continued till the list is complete. Suppose we wish to ascertain the nature of the combination in the 15th position (in the table of 32 types). The process will be as follows :—

$$\frac{15}{2} = 7 \text{ (1 remainder) = Devoted ;}$$

$$\frac{7+1}{2} = 4 \text{ (no remainder) = Little learning ;}$$

$$\frac{4}{2} = 2 \text{ (no remainder) = Without external pressure ;}$$

$$\frac{2}{2} = 1 \text{ (no remainder) = Repeated slips ;}$$

$$\frac{1}{2} = 1 \text{ remainder = Straightforward.}$$

The method of finding out the position (ud-diṣṭa) of any particular combination of traits of character is this: begin by determining, with reference to the table giving the measure of alternations, the position of the attribute in the last column, then go on to the one next to it, and so on, till you get to the first, which will determine the number. Suppose we have to find out the position of the group "devoted, little knowledge, external pressure, one fault, not straightforward": we shall fix up the columns backwards, beginning with the last, thus

"not straightforward"	17-32	(does not occur in 1-16);
"one fault"	17-24	(does not occur in 25-32);
"external pressure"	17-20	(does not occur in 21-24);
"little knowledge"	19-20	(does not occur in 17-18);
"devoted"	19	(does not occur at 20).

This gives us the position of the combination in the above scheme as 19, which is correct. Another method of determining the position (uddiṣṭa) is this: write the figure 1 and then multiply it with 2 with reference to the trait of the last column; then deduct 1 from the total if the element be affirmative; then multiply the remainder again with two, with reference to the trait of the next preceding column, and deduct 1 as before, if it happens to be affirmative; repeat the process for the remaining columns till the first one is reached. The result will indicate the position which was to be determined.

Suppose we have to find out the position allotted to the "devoted, much learning, external pressure, one fault, straightforward" type: the process will be as follows:—

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ with reference to the last column ;

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ with reference to the 4th column ;

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ with reference to the 3rd column ;

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ with reference to the 2nd column ;

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ with reference to the first column.

This gives us the answer that was sought, as the process ends here. To take another instance, suppose the type is "not-devoted, little-learning, no external pressure, repeated slips, straightforward." Then the process will be as follows:—

$1 \times 2 = 2 - 1 = 1$ (1 must be deducted as "straight-forward" is an affirmative trait) ;

$1 \times 2 = 2$ (nothing to be deducted as "repeated slips" is an antithetical trait) ;

$2 \times 2 = 4$ with reference to the third column ;

$4 \times 2 = 8$ with reference to the second column ;

$8 \times 2 = 16$ with reference to the first column, which also contains the answer.

CHAPTER VII

CONSIDERATIONS AFFECTING PENANCE

1—KĀLA (Time)

Considerations of time, place and local conditions influence the determination of penance.

Kāla, that is, time, has been divided into three classes, namely, the rainy season, winter and summer. In all the three kālas it is permissible to award severe, mild and middling forms of tapa. The severe tapa for the rainy season is five continuous fasts; that in winter is a four days' fast; and in summer a three days' fast at a stretch.

The middling tapa consists of four continuous fasts in the rainy season, three in winter, and two in summer.

The mild form of tapa signifies three days' continuous fasting in the rainy season, two days' in winter, and one day's in summer.

In all these fastings it is understood that only one meal is to be taken on the day preceding the commencement of the fast and on that on which it is broken.

There is another mode of classification of time which proceeds on the basis of the six recognized divisions of the year. These are :

- (1) the śarad, that is, the months of Asauja and Kārtika = October and November (roughly);
- (2) the hemanta, namely, the months of Mārgśirsa and Puṣa = December and January (roughly);
- (3) the śiśira, i.e., Māgha and Phālguna = February and March (roughly);
- (4) the vasanta, i.e., the months of Chaitra and Bysākhā = April and May (roughly);
- (5) the grīṣma, i.e., the months of Jyēṣṭha and Aṣāḍha, = June and July (roughly);
- (6) the varṣā, i.e., the months of Śrāvaṇa and Bhādrapada = August and September (roughly).

Of these, the śarad, the vasanta and the grīṣma are termed guru, and the rest laghu.

Tapa is also divided into guru (severe) and laghu (mild) types. By combining the elements of guru and laghu of kāla and tapa together, five combinations are obtained as follows:—

- (1) guru kāla + guru tapa;

- (2) laghu kāla + laghu tapa ;
- (3) kāla guru + tapa laghu,
or tapa guru + kāla laghu ;
- (4) tapa guru + kāla partly laghu and
partly guru ;
- (5) kāla guru + tapa partly laghu and
partly guru.

The Leader (āchārya) should award these in his discretion, according to the individual requirement and the condition of the seasons. In the laghu kāla, a laghu form of tapa should generally be given.

2—KSHETRA (Country)

Land is of ten kinds, broadly speaking—

- (1) the anūpa which abounds in water, e.g., Magadha (= Behar) and Malaya (Ma-dura near the Western Ghats), Vanvāsa (Bengal), Konkan (the country lying to the east of the Western Ghats)
and Sinddha (Sind);
- (2) the jāṅgala (forest land) characterized by an abundance of insect life but not noted for much water ;
- (3) the bhākta-kshetra, the home of paddy ;
- (4) the kalmāṣa kshetra where the people grow various kinds of pulses chiefly ;

- (5) the śaktū kshetra, the land of barley, where people take sattū (a preparation of barley meal) generally;
- (6) the rasā pulāka which is noted for milch cows and the abundance of the supply of milk and the products of milk;
- (7) the dhānya-pulāka, the land of wheat and other kinds of cereals;
- (8) the yavāgū where people take yavāgū (liquid foods, or paste-like *khichri);
- (9) the kanda-kshetra, where roots (potatoes of various kinds and other vegetables of the potato family) are grown;
- (10) the mūla, where are grown chiefly such things as ginger, turmeric and other forms of pungent articles that grow underground.

The one rule in regard to the above places is this that light penance should be given in dry and hot places (like Marwad and Malwa) where rich food is not obtained. In colder places where plenty of milk and ghee is eaten by the people severe tapa is permissible.

3—FOOD-SUPPLY

In fixing the penance it is also necessary to bear in mind the nature of the food the penitents

* A dish of rice and dal (pulses) cooked together.

are likely to get. The general rule with regard to this is as follows: where the people, whether of one's own faith, or the followers of other creeds, are respectful and where the best of rich food is obtainable, severe tapa is indicated there; where the food obtainable is of a middling kind, less severe forms of penance should be enforced there; and where inferior kind of food, e.g., cheaprice, is to be had, there the lightest penances, namely, āchāmla, nirvikṛiti, purumandala and ekasthāna are to be given, but not upavāsa.

CHAPTER VIII

THE PENANCES

1—ĀLOCHANĀ (Confession)

Ālochanā means Confession.

There are ten faults of ālochanā which the confessing saint should avoid. These are as follows :—

1. Ākampita, bribing, i.e., the offering of an acceptable present ;
2. Anumāpita, pleading ill-health ; or taking advantage of a special occasion ;
3. Yaddṛista, concealing faults not perceived by others ;
4. Bādara, non-observance of minor faults from laziness, or their concealment ;
5. Sūkṣama, concealing major sins ;
6. Chhanna, confession in the third person, i.e., the endeavour to ascertain the proper penance, as if for some one else ;
7. Śabdākulita, disclosing earlier sins ;

8. Bahujana, questioning others about the (merit of the) penance prescribed by the guru (leader), or adopting what was prescribed for another as penance for one's own sins ;
9. Avyakta, confessing before one of an equal status ;
10. Tatsevita, confessing to oneself, i.e., adopting the penance prescribed for some one else for the same kind of fault as one's own.

A confession is to be made before one's Leader (the āchārya of the community of saints). The ten kinds of faults mentioned above are to be avoided. All true facts should be disclosed before the leader.¹

Ālochanā is enjoined as the proper and adequate penance for the following sins:—

for faults committed because of the natural imperfections in the performance of austerities and the control of the senses and the body and the mind;²

for the various forms of movements, however carefully executed, inasmuch as all movements are really opposed to the nature of pure spirit;³

for the movements performed with due care, whilst away from one's own community (of saints);⁴

for visiting another party of saints, though all faults are avoided when doing so.¹

2—PRATIKRAMAṆA

Pratikramaṇa means self-censure. It is adequate penance for the following faults: the utterance of venial untruths under the influence of sex-passion,² for throwing bodily products and excrement in places not intended for the purpose or in forbidden places,³ for thinking evil, entertaining unbecoming thoughts, or showing disrespect, by the word of mouth, to the Founders of the Faith, the Gaṇadharas (Apostles of Tirthamkaras), or the Āchāryas and the like, and for resort to violence—kicking, beating, etc.,⁴ for forgetting the vaiyāvṛitya (serving or nursing penance), sneezing, passing wind, yawning, dreaming evil dreams (nocturnal emission), or forgetting to attend on sickly saints,⁵ for exhibiting visible marks of sexual excitement, whether seen by others or not, when walking, or when engaged in seeking or eating food,⁶ and for exciting angry or painful feelings in the heart of another person.⁷

Pratikramaṇa should be performed immediately after the discovery of a fault, in language such as this: Woe is me ; I have wrought great evil ; I disclaim my evil act ; it is hereby annulled (disowned)! More severe forms of self-censure must be employed where such are indicated by the nature of the offence.

⁶ S'. 193. ⁷ S'. 193.

Repetition of the great Salutation mantram nine times is termed laghu (minor) pratikramaṇa. It should be performed generally after every sort of act, e. g. eating, passing urine, etc., to avoid cultivating the sense of attachment or aversion to it.

3—TADUBHAYA

Tadubhaya is ālochanā (confession) plus self-censure (pratikramaṇa). It applies to cases of fine distinction which cannot be made by ordinary saints, on account of their natural deficiencies, or where faults are committed without being known, although due care is taken for observing the rules of conduct, especially of the processes of periodical—daily, nightly, fortnightly, four-monthly, yearly and death-bed—pratikramaṇa, as faultlessly as possible.¹

4—VIVEKA

Viveka, also termed Tyāga, means giving up, that is discontinuing the action that was taking place. It is regarded as adequate penance in the following cases :—

Where a dwelling place, food, or an article of use which was not deemed to be objectionable at first is discovered to be so later on ;¹

Where a doubt has arisen in the mind as regards the purity or objectionableness of the whole or a part of food ;²

Where part of the food is found to be objectionable ;³

Where the food is pure but unwholesome or unclean thoughts have become associated with the whole or a part of it ;⁴

Where the mind is inclined to take food (prepared with all proper care) at night, owing to ill health or under the fear that one might not be able to get it again soon on account of famine ;⁵

Where objectionable food or what has been given up is placed in the plate or hand, or where it has actually been put in the mouth. ⁶

NOTE:—In cases where the objectionable article can be separated from the unobjectionable one, it is permissible to take the unobjectionable things and to leave the others (S'. 198-200).

५—KAYOTSARGA

Such of the faults as are unavoidable or are commonly committed and slight, e.g., walking, eating, etc., only merit the kāyotsarga penance.¹ The same penance is indicated where an apamṛita (untouchable or impure) body is touched, itching is relieved, or bodily limbs stretched or contracted, or where bodily products, (excrement, saliva, phlegm and the like) are discharged in a manner contrary to the proper mode.² Kāyotsarga is also the proper expiation for such acts as pulling threads or straw to pieces, causing slight agitation, the employment of hands in collecting books, mentally resolving to complete an upkarana (an accessory, e.g., a book or feather whisk) in a certain number of days.³ If a bodily limb rub against clay, hard seeds, green grass or tarasa (insect) life, one kāyotsarga is the penance therefor.⁴

⁶ S'. 202.

If a saint fail to observe the kāyotsarga penance at the proper time he incurs the penalty of an upavāsa (fast), but not of chheda.⁵

6—TAPA

Tapa generally means asceticism, but in connection with penance it signifies fasting.

One and thirty combinations are formed with the five types of fasting penances, namely, puru- mandala, nirvikṛiti, ekasthāna, āchāmla and upavāsa, and along with kāyotsarga, which is the lightest form of penance, are provided for the thirty-two types of the sinful mentality, according to the degree of sinfulness. In this way different transgressors get suitable penance for their transgressions, and steady progress is maintained.

The thirty-one combinations of the five forms of fasting tapa are shown in the following table in which their values (see Chap. IV) are also shown. The first place is given to kāyotsarga naturally, as it is the lightest form of penance, and is to be prescribed for the mildest form of sin. The valuations arrived at are in terms of fractions or multiples of a fast.

The total number of the penances in the above 31 combinations is 80, which by the addition of one for a kāyotsarga becomes 81. The above table slightly differs from that given in the Hindi commentary, but, as already stated, the commentary is not critical. It even places nirvikṛiti which is equal to half a fast, before purumandala that is only a quarter of one. The explanation of the anomaly in the valuation of such of the combinations as the sixth (=one upavāsa) and the seventh (which is only equal to three-fourths of an upavāsa) is to be sought in the additional penances that are combined in the less valuable one, so that the one with the lower estimate is really the more difficult of the two, because of its observance being extended to a longer period (an extra day).

The (32) combinations are termed ślākās (purifications), and are to be distributed as follows amongst the 32 types of the sinful mentality (see Chapter VI ante) :—

TABLE (1)

Types	Ślākās	Purifications
1	ālochanā (simple confession)	mere confession
2	1st ślākā	one

As for the distribution of the ślākās with reference to the table of 16-typed sinful mentality, some āchāryas would seem to recommend the allotment of the first ślākā out of the original thirty-one (without counting kāyotsarga as one) to the first type, marked with four plus marks (+ + + +), and of the rest to the remaining types—two to each type. In a tabulated form they may be shown, with their valuations, as follows:—

TABLE (2)

Types	Śtākās	Valuation
1	1st	0·25
2	2nd and 3rd	1·0
3	4th and 5th	1·75
4	6th and 7th	1·50
5	8th and 9th	2·0
6	10th and 11th	2·50
7	12th and 13th	2·75
8	14th and 15th	3·25
9	16th and 17th	2·75
10	18th and 19th	3·25
11	20th and 21st	3·50
12	22nd and 23rd	4·0
13	24th and 25th	4·50
14	26th and 27th	4·25
15	28th and 29th	5·0
16	30th and 31st	5·75

It will be seen that the above allotment is almost perfect, there being only two instances of irregularity which are, however, trifling, negligible and unavoidable. These purifications will fit even more judiciously in the revised table (see Table No. 4 post).

According to another method of calculation, ālochanā (confession) is to be allotted to the first type, and the distribution of the 32 ślākās is to be made as in the following table:—

TABLE (3)

Types	Ślākās	Purifications	Valuation
	1 (only confession)	ālochanā (confession)	confession
1
2	2 (9th+28th)	6	3'0

6	2 (14th+27th)	6	3'75
7	2 (16th+22nd)	6	3'25
8	2 (12th+28th)	6	3'75
9	2 (3rd+4th)	2	1'25

13	2 (7th+10th)	4	2'0
14*	2 (24th+25th)	6	4'50
15	2 (17th+19th)	6	3'25
16	3 (5th+29th+31st)	10	6'50

* According to the text the ślākās allotted to the 10th type are the 21st and 23rd (with an estimated value of 3'75), and those allotted to the 12th are Nos. 18th and 20th (valued at 3'25). This is obviously wrong, as will be evident from an analysis of the estimation of the different elements of sinful mentality, according to which repeated slip	is estimated at	0'75

not resisting	" "	1'25
not longing to live	" "	2'25
upto truth }	" "
no external stress	" "	3'0

At this valuation the penalty for the 12th type should be 3+1'75+1'25=5; and for the 10th, 3+1'25=4'25. But according to the text 3'25 has been assigned to No. 12 and 3'75 to No. 10. That some mistake has occurred in this connection in the text is evident from the fact that certain other writers (according to the Hindi commentary) allot the ślākās assigned to the 10th type to No. 14 and those assigned to the latter to No. 10. Against the seemingly lighter punishment in higher types of the negative order is to be set off the extended observance of penances, inasmuch as several ślākās are combined in the penance prescribed for those types.

If the types be re-arranged (in the proper way) the penalties will appear as follows :—

TABLE (4)

Types	Description	Signs	Valuation
1	One slip, resisting, longing to live upto truth, external stress	++++	confession
2	Repeated slips, resisting, longing to live upto truth, external stress	-++++	0'75

16	Repeated slips, not resisting, not longing to live upto truth, no external stress...	- - - -	6'50

If the scheme of the allotment of the ślākās is slightly revised, more satisfactory results will ensue. The following redistribution is likely to commend itself to a judicially trained mind:

TABLE (5)

Types	Ślākās	Valuation
1	Confession	No fasting value
2	2 (1st and 2nd)	0'75
3	2 (19th and 20th)	1'25

15	2 (24th and 25th)	4'50
16	3 (5th, 29th and 31st)	6'50

NOTE.—Penances of the same face-value are not necessarily alike in point of merit and austerity.

With reference to the 8-typed classification the allotment of ślākāś would be as follows:—

TABLE (6)

Types	Ślākāś	Purifications	Valuation
1	3 (1st, 2nd and 3rd)	3	1·50
2	4 (4th, 5th, 6th and 13th)	6	4·0
3	4 (7th, 8th, 14th and 15th)	8	5·0
4	4 (9th, 10th, 11th and 12th)	8	4·75
5	4 (16th, 18th, 23rd and 25th)	12	7·0
6	4 (17th, 19th, 20th and 24th)	12	7·25
7	4 (21st, 22nd, 26th and 30th)	14	8·50
8	4 (27th, 28th, 29th and 31st)	17	10·25

NOTE.—It is to be borne in mind that the types marked by odd numbers are generally less evil, than the next even ones, though amongst themselves they become more worthy of censure as we rise higher, thus the seventh is the worst in this class, the fifth more evil than the third but less than the seventh, and so forth. The same remark applies to those marked by even numbers as regards their comparative sinfulness.

It should be noted that the tables of penances given above are characterised by rising severity of expiation, and mark the limits of the maximum and the minimum of penance for faults committed. The penalty is to be fixed with due regard to all the considerations that may present themselves in individual cases. It should never be forgotten that the object of penance is the re-establishing of the penitent in the very position of purity from which he has fallen. Punishment may be the object in the view of the temporal judge; it is not in that of the Spiritual Leader!

The thirty-one forms of the fasting penance may be combined with other kinds of penance, kāyotsarga, pratikramaṇa and the like, in the discretion of the Leader (āchārya), according to the requirements of the individual cases.

The limit for the fasting penance, strictly speaking, is six months. If it is prolonged it might produce ill effect, and may lead to evil thinking and disrespect in the mind of the penitent and others, which must be avoided in any case. If the sinner be incorrigible and not amenable to penance, or his sin be something that is likely to bring unprecedented trouble on the community of saints, the remedy is expulsion; but not the imposition of unbearable tapa (fasting). However, some āchāryas have recommended severer fasting in the case of nuns who have misbehaved with saints or other men. The limit in such a case would be seven months. He who kills a Jaina saint has, however, to observe 2-days' fasts for a whole year.¹

The method of observing the ślākās is two-fold : with intervals, that is, by the interposition of regular meals, termed sāntara, and without such interposition (nirantara). The order of observance in the first case (e.g. with reference to nirvikṛiti) will be as follows: nirvikṛiti, regular meal, nirvik., regular meal, nirv., reg. meal,.....and so on. In the other case it will be: nirvikṛiti, nirv. n, n, . . . and so on. Whether it be purumandala, nirvikṛiti, ekasthāna, āchāmla or upavāsa, the order will be the same for every one of them.

In observing the combinations also the same method is to be followed. If it is sāntara observance, a regular meal will be allowed after the combination, which in itself will not be broken up, e.g., purumandala, nirvikṛiti, ekasthāna, āchāmla, upavāsa, regular meal, purumandala, nirvikṛiti, ekasthāna, āchāmla, upavāsa, regular meal.....and so on.

If the observance is without the interposition of regular meals, the combinations will run on without break, till the whole period during which the penance is to be observed is gone through.

7—CHHEDA

Chheda is the loss of seniority measured by days, fortnights, months, and years. He who does not improve in any other way, that is, by milder measures, must be treated with chheda. It is also given for those who have merited severer penance than fasting, but who have not deserved reordination (mūla).

The following are some of the occasions for the enforcement of this form of penance :—

Faults.	Period of chheda .
For leaving the sangha (company of saints) and for moving about alone¹ For falling away from the true saintly path, and roaming about in different unsaintly or less saintly (lax) styles² For keeping the company of unsaintly sādhus by one who pulls himself up readily again after a slip (1) if he return within six months (2) if after six months³ For failure to apologise after a fault (when the saint remains in the sangha) (1) in the case of an ordinary saint (2) for a specially qualified or learned saint (3) for an āchārya⁴ For leaving the sangha without apologising for the fault committed. (1) for an ordinary saint (2) in the case of an advanced or specially qualified saint (3) in the case of an āchārya⁵	As much time as the penitent has lived away. As much time as the transgressor remains away from the true saintly path. Tapa penance ; Chheda (for the whole length of the period of absence). 5 days for every 24 hours' delay ; 10 days for every 24 hours' delay ; 15 days for every 24 hours' delay. 10 days for every 24 hours' delay ; 15 days for every 24 hours' delay ; 20 days for every 24 hours' delay.

8—MŪLA

So long as chheda is still available as a penance and mūla has not been merited by the transgressor, chheda should be given. Mūla signifies complete deprivation of seniority and amounts to re-ordination. He who is given this form of penance will not rank as senior to a saint who is ordained just at that moment. For such faults as are beyond the curative efficacy of the chheda, that is to say, which are too grave to be cured by it and yet are not strong enough to merit parihāra (expulsion), the proper penance is mūla. If the mahā-vratas (the main vows of asceticism) have been violated completely the proper penance is mūla (to establish the delinquent once more in the vows). It should be sought from the same āchārya who originally ordained the transgressor.¹

The mūla is indicated, as the proper penance, in the following cases :—

For the loss of faith, conduct and the principal vows, and for the non-observance of the six necessary daily duties, and for ordaining a pregnant woman or an impotent person into sainthood.²

For propounding doctrines which are opposed to the Teaching of the Scripture.³

For behaving in unsaintly or lax, i.e., less-saintly modes, that is, for adopting the life of a pārsvastha, kuśila, avasanna, or mṛigchāri sādhu.¹

For adopting the mode and style of the sādhus of the non-Jaina faiths, for falling back into the householder's stage, for insincerity in the adoption of the vows of a Jaina saint, and for very gross sins.²

For the commission of sins that are destructive of the mūla guṇas (root virtues) of saintly life, and for ordaining men of the pariah caste.³

NOTE.—Those who have been admitted into the order by any of the unsaintly saints named in the 239th śloka should be admitted into the order by mula (re-ordination).

If a saint loses faith in the doctrine of truth, but reverts to the true faith himself without any one's knowing of his loss of faith, he may select his own penance (whatever he likes); but if his change of belief becomes known to any one, then he should be given the mūla penance.⁴

9—PARIHĀRA

Parihāra (expulsion) is either partial or complete. Partial expulsion from the sangha (the company to which one belongs) is anupasthāna or anupasthāpanā parihāra. There are two types of this: sva-gaṇa (own gaṇa) anupasthāpanā, and para-gaṇa (another gaṇa) anupasthāpanā. Gaṇa means the same thing here as a company of saints. The difference between these two types lies in this that while in the sva-gaṇa the penitent remains attached to his own gaṇa, and takes absolution from his own Leader, in the para-gaṇa type he is sent from leader to leader, and, required to confess his sin to at least three āchāryas of different sanghas, and in the more heinous cases, to as many as seven āchāryās. He is then sent back to his own āchārya, either in the backward order or direct, and from him he takes his penance.

The sva-gaṇa penitent sits at a distance of 64 yards from his sangha and has to salute, attend on and serve the juniormost members of it. Even if a junior saint come his way he must stand up and advance towards him, to show him respect; but he is not entitled to be treated with this mark of respect from his juniors under similar circumstances. He must devote his time to the observance of the penance, seated outside the gathering of his brother saints at a proper distance. The penitent is also required to observe fasting of the severest type, the mildest being one regular meal after every five days' fast, and the severest, after every six months; which is beyond the capacity of the present-day humanity, though not of the men of the adamantine frames of the hoary past. The penance may have to be observed for a period of 12 years.

Pāranchika parihāra is deserved by those whose sins are the blackest and the worst. The sinner in this case has his sin proclaimed before the world, is turned out of the country and may have to live even among strangers and men of wrong faiths. He is required to observe the fasting penance as in the anupasthāpanā parihāra, with the same types of severity and for a similar period, namely, 12 years. Then he will be deemed to have been purified and absolved.

Anupasthāpanā is indicated in the following cases :—

For the abduction of a sādhu of another faith, or of a layman, a woman, a child or the pupil of a brother saint, and for assaulting or striking a saint with a stick.¹

Pāranchika parihāra is provided for men who show disrespect to and insult the Tirthamkaras, the Siddhas and Holy Saints, or who join the king's enemies.² It is also the penalty incurred by those who defile the True Faith and the Scripture of Truth.³ He who is an enemy of the ruling king,

or who ordains the experienced officers of the state when their services are indispensable for the public good also deserves the pāraṇchika parihāra.¹ The defiler or the lover of the pattarāṇi (chief queen) is also worthy of the severest penalty known to the āchārya judge.²

10—ŚRADDHĀNA

Śraddhāna signifies the acquisition of faith. It is applicable to the case of a renegade or apostate who wishes to come back into the Right Fold once more. He may be re-admitted into the order of the saints in the discretion of the Leader (āchārya) if he is able to observe the mūla guṇas (root virtues) of sainthood.

PART II

PENANCES

1—CONCERNING THE FIRST VOW (AHIMŚĀ)

To determine the amount of the proper penance merited by a saint for the destruction of the life of different kinds of living beings, a reference has to be made to the “senses and prāṇas” with which different forms of life are endowed differently.

The lowest form of life is one-sensed, which comprises those living beings who are endowed only with the sense of touch, e.g., vegetables. Then there are the two-sensed beings, who enjoy touch and taste both, as is the case with oysters and snails. The three-sensed have smell in addition to the above two. In this class are found ants and many other kinds of insects. In the class of four-sensed life are included bees and flies, etc. They have sight also. The five-sensed are the fishes, rats, monkeys, man, etc. They enjoy hearing also. In this class there are two sub-divisions, the sangi (endowed with the capacity to think) and the asangi (not capable of rational thought).

As regards prāṇas (vitalities), the one-sensed have four of them, namely, breath, bodily strength, longevity and the sense of touch. The two-sensed have these four, and in addition they have the sense of taste and the capacity to utter sounds. The three-sensed have the sense of smell, the four-sensed those of smell and sight, and the five-sensed those of smell, sight and hearing in addition to the six possessed by the two-sensed. Then the sangi five-sensed beings are further endowed with the organ of thought. We thus have five senses and ten prāṇas, which are the basis of the discriminating treatment of the different kinds of sinners.

The mildest form of penance is to require one kāyotsarga for each sense, so that if a one-sensed form of life is destroyed one kāyotsarga is the penance therefor. For a two-sensed insect, two kāyotsargas are necessary, and so on.

Severer forms of penance are provided with reference to the mental characteristics of the sinner. The elements taken into consideration, according to one method of calculation, are the following :

1. whether observing fundamental virtues (mūla guṇas) only or additional ones (uttara guṇas) also ;

2. whether inclined to resist temptation or sinning (prayatnachāri) or not (aprayatnachāri) ;

3. whether wavering (asthira) in the observance of the rules, or unwavering (sthira).

By combining them differently we get the following eight types of mentality :—

1. Uttara g.+resisting +unwavering
2. Mūla g.+ " + "
3. Uttara g.+unresisting + "
4. Mūla g.+ " + "
5. Uttara g.+resisting +wavering
6. Mūla g.+ " + "
7. Uttara g.+unresisting+ "
8. Mūla g.+ " + "

According to some āchāryas the resisting type of personality is entitled to be treated on the basis of the senses destroyed, and the unresisting on that of vitalities. Fasting is to be added on the following basis: for the destruction of 12 one-sensed forms of life one fast. Further equations are as follows:—

12 1-sensed lives = 6 2-sensed ones = 4 3-sensed ones = 3 4-sensed ones. If destruction of life has taken place on a larger scale the equation will not be observed. But for 36 one-sensed lives two continuous fasts are required to be observed. Two continuous fasts are also required for 18 2-sensed, 12 3-sensed, 9 4-sensed and 1 5-sensed forms of life.

According to another method the table of penances is to be worked out as follows:—

	Types of temperament.	Destruction of all forms of life except that endowed with the capacity to think (the sangī).
		for one sin	for repeated sins
1	Uttara g. + unwavering + vigilant	1 kalyānaka	3 upavāsas
2	Mūla g. + unwavering + vigilant	2 upavāsas *	3 upavāsas

* According to the text the penance for one fault in this case is 3 upavāsas and for repeated faults only 2 upavāsas; but this is a clear case of error. The necessary correction has therefore been made in this place.

	Types of temperament.	Destruction of all forms of life except that endowed with the capacity to think (the sangi).
		for one sin	for repeated sins
3	Uttara g. + wavering + vigilant	1 kalyānaka	1 kalyānaka
4	Mūla g. + wavering + vigilant	2 upavāsas	1 pancha kal-yānaka
5	Uttara g. + unwavering + non-vigilant	2 upavāsas *	3 upavāsas *
6	Mūla g. + unwavering + non-vigilant	2 upavāsas	1 kalyānaka
7	Uttara g. + wavering + non-vigilant	2 upavāsas	1 pancha kal-yānaka
8	Mūla g. + wavering + non-vigilant	laghumāsa (one kalyānaka)	mūla

The same is the penance for the destruction of the sangi type of the 5-sensed forms of animal-life, except that the fasts are then required to be observed without interruption, whereas in the other case regular meals are allowed to be interposed between fasts, in case of illness.

Some āchāryas divide the motive for an action into two classes and then subdivide each of them into different sub-classes as follows:—

* According to the text the penance for one fault in this case is 3 upavāsas and for repeated faults only 2 upavāsas; but this is covered by the remark in the foot-note on the preceding page, and has been corrected as before.

Hatred is always evil, and the same is the case with self-love (selfishness). The love of another, which manifests itself in acts of sympathy, philanthropy and the like, is commendable in the householder's stage; but it has to be given up in sannyāsa. Nevertheless the penance for the doing of an act of sympathy is rather mild as compared with that for a selfish one.

Further forms of penance in connection with the first vow (ahimsā) are given below:—

For causing the death of a Jaina Saint¹ 2-days' fasts for a whole year.

For causing the death of a Jaina lay-of faith) ¹ | ... | ... | mūla . |

15—CONCERNING MŪLA GUṆAS

For the transgressions of any of the following 13 mūla guṇas (root virtues), namely, 5 samītis, 5 sense-controls, keśa-locha, sleeping on the ground and the vow against rubbing the teeth³

- | | | | |
|-------------------------------|-----|-----|-------------------------|
| (a) if only one fault | ... | ... | one kāyotsarga ; |
| (b) when committed repeatedly | ... | ... | one upavāsa . |

For the transgressions of the remaining 15 mūla guṇas, namely, 5 unqualified vows, 6 daily observances, remaining unclothed, non-bathing, standing up while eating and eating only once a day³

- | | | | |
|-------------------------------|-----|-----|-----------------------------|
| (a) in case of only one fault | ... | ... | pratikramaṇa + o n o |
| (b) when committed repeatedly | ... | ... | fast;
re-ordination. |

NOTE.—Transgressions of vows and of the rules of saintly conduct are of various shades and grades. Their penances also vary with their type and nature, rising in severity with the rise in the sinfulness of the deed. The following table will show a more graduated scale of punishment for various sins.

For violations of the 13 minor *mūla guṇas*³

(a) when violated but once¹

- (i) for the mildest form of violation ... mithyākara (disclaimer);
- (ii) somewhat less mild ... regret;
- (iii) in a still more objectionable case ... self-censure;
- (iv) where of a serious type ... confession;
- (v) more serious than the last ... minor kāyotsarga (=recitation of the salutation mantram nine times);
- (vi) if still more serious ... more prolonged kāyotsarga (9 to 108 recitations of the salutation mantram);
- (vii) in the worst case ... one full kāyotsarga (108 recitations of the mantram);

(b) when repeatedly violated¹

- (i) for a mild form of violation ... one purumandala;
- (ii) less mild ... one nirvikṛiti;
- (iii) in a serious case ... one ekasthāna;
- (iv) more serious still ... one āchāmla;
- (v) in the worst case ... pratikramaṇa and an upavāsa.

For violations of the remaining 15 *mūla guṇas*¹

(α) when committed but once

- (i) for the mildest form ... pratikramaṇa and an upavāsa;
- (ii) for more serious cases ... more severe tapa (according to the type of sinful mentality);

- (b) when repeatedly committed .. one ṣaṣṭha, a 3 days' fast, a 5-days' fast, a fortnight's fast, a month's or six months' or a year's fast; in the worst case, chheda (for varying periods), and finally mūla (re-ordination).

16—CONCERNING UTTARA GUṆAS

The uttara guṇas are additional or special accomplishments, over and above the root virtues whose number is eight and twenty. They are either special forms of fastings or of yoga austerities. The transgressions of some of them are given here with the proper penances.

For the discontinuance, owing to illness, insect-bite and the like¹ of

- (i) the *vriksha mūla*² or the *atorāṇa*³ austerities ... as many fasts as the number of the days that remained to be completed in the undertaking;

- (ii) the abhrāvakāśa,⁴ the sthāna,⁵ the *mauna*⁶ and

² The vriksha mūla is a form of austerity in which the saint undertakes to stay under a particular tree for a fixed period of time.

³ The atorāṇa is an engagement to stay in the open.

⁴ The abhrāvakāśa means staying in but not under shade.

⁵ The sthāna is the vow to remain in one place only.

⁶ The mauna is the vow of silence.

the *veerāsana*¹, ālōchanā and may be pratīkramana with one day's fast; or any other form of tapa
 penance up to a pan-
cha kalyānaka.

For discontinuing, owing to political upheaval, an epidemic, and the like, a yoga undertaking with a long fixed period—

(i) if discontinued at the commencement of a fortnight ... pratīkramana and a pancha kalyānaka;

(ii) if in the middle of a fortnight as many fasts as the number of the remaining days in the fortnight;

(iii) if at the end of a fortnight² .. one laghu māsa.

NOTE.—The disturbed yogas, sthāna, mauna, etc., should also be re-established.²

17—CONCERNING THE BASTIKĀ

For abiding, through ignorance, in a place full of moving or un-moving living beings—³

(a) for one fault one fast;

(b) for repeated faults one kalyānaka.

¹ The veerāsana is a sitting yoga posture, with the right leg doubled under itself at the knee, and the left foot resting on the right thigh. All the above yoga forms are undertaken for a fixed period of time, but they admit of one's getting up to discharge the functions of nature. Of the above the vrīksha mūla and the atorana are termed sthira (unmoving) and the rest chala (moving) yogas. According to some āchāryas all the yogas are sthira (unmoving) yogas. Two other names of yogas, the ātāpana and the avagraha are mentioned in the text. The ātāpana signifies staying in the sun, but the purport of the other has not been ascertained. The penance for the discontinuance of the avagraha austerity is the same as that for the sthāna and the mauna to whose class it belongs; but the penance for the ātāpana is not given. It is, however, described as both sthira and chala.

² Ch. 72-74. ³ Ch. 75.

For abiding, through ignorance, in a place full of moving or un-moving living beings when done knowingly —

- (a) for one fault pratikramaṇa + one pancha kalyāṇaka;
 (b) for repeated faults¹ mūla (re-ordination).

For exhorting others to build a tower, a village, houses, habitations and the like—

- (a) when done through ignorance one kalyāṇaka;
 (b) when done knowingly ... one pancha kalyāṇaka;

- (a) if more than a month has elapsed⁵ since one kalyāṇaka;
 (b) where four months have elapsed since⁵ one pancha kalyāṇaka.

NOTE.—The udgama faults whose number is sixteen are concerned with the giver and the manner of preparing or making of food or a dwelling place; the utpādana, also sixteen in number, have reference to the manner of obtaining either of them (see the Sannyāsa Dharma, Chap. VI).

For carelessly plastering the dwelling place if the floor has become uneven
due to rains—

- (i) if done on a small scale ... one purumandala;
(ii) when done on a large scale¹ ... one kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penance is necessary if the work is done carefully with due care.

For plastering, without due care, the habitation after the performance of the functions of nature² ... one purumandala.

NOTE.—There is no penalty when the plastering is done with due care.

For plastering on a large scale and without due care³ ... one kalyānaka.

For carelessly plastering the place before or after the natural function³ ... One pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penalty is incurred if plastering be done with due care, though it may be on a large scale, in the above cases.

For entering a dwelling occupied by other people, or without ascertaining whether it is occupied by the faithful laity or not⁴ ... one kalyānaka.

For causing a disturbance over the use of a proper and properly offered nightly dwelling⁵ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

For driving away cattle (that is, preventing them for coming into one's place) in the rain⁶ ... one kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penalty is incurred by stopping the cattle in any other season.

For not intervening if a thief break into the place—⁶

- (a) where no property is lost ... one kalyānaka.
(b) where property is stolen ... one pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penance is incurred if the saint utter words of alarm—fire, thief, and the like.⁶

- (e) for suffering men, whether big or small, to worship one when one remains unaffected by pride; otherwise the penalty is⁴ ... one pancha kalyānaka

For showing disrespect to or lowering the dignity of the Scripture of Truth and of its significancy⁵ ... from ālochanū and a *kāyotsarga*⁵ to *pāraṇchika parihāra*⁶

1 §. 110. 2 §. 111. 3 §. 112. 4 §. 113. 5 Ch. 81.
6 §. 249.

- For finding fault with the five kinds of divine Preceptors¹ pratikramaṇa and a kāyotsarga and an upavāsa.
- For showing disrespect to the Tirthamkara,
the Founder of the faith, the Gaṇadharas (Apostles of the Tirthamkaras), the āchar- ya, and the like² from pratikramaṇa to pāranchika.³
- For lowering the teaching of Saints and the Scripture of Truth in the estimation of men⁴ one upavāsa (to pāranchika).⁵
- For not showing, through laziness, that is lack of vigilance, proper courtesy and respect to a brother saint, whether belonging to one's own gaṇa or to another, and not holding with him saintly intercourse—greeting, bidding farewell, interchange of ideas, confession of sins, etc.,—which are permissible to a saint⁶ expulsion from the province for one year.
- For writing the Scriptural text on ground or stone⁷ an upavāsa.
- For ditto on one's own stomach or arm⁷ ... ālōchanā.
- For showing disrespect to the great Salutation mantram, the six daily duties, the five great vows of Saints, and disregarding the observance known as asedhikā and nisedhikā (after 3 faults)⁸ mūla.
- For doing any of the following acts without first obtaining the leave of his Leader (āchārya): discharging the functions of nature, going to a village for charyā (for rambling or food) or to a hamlet more than a kosa (2 miles) distant⁹... ... one purumandala.

1 Ch. 80. 2 Ś. 190. 3 Ś. 249. 4 Ch. 82.

5 Ś. 250. 6 Ch. 90-91. 7 Ch. 92. 8 Ch. 99. 9 Ś. 124.

For showing disrespect to a brother saint,
filled with pride of caste, family, wisdom
and the like¹ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

For not observing² the rule of *ichchhākāra*³ one purumandala.

For defiling the true faith⁴ ... pāranchika parihāra.

For not saying "nisahi, nisahi, nisahi" when entering and "asahi, asahi, asahi"
when leaving a temple, a cave or maṭha
and the like at night

(i) if it occur but once ... one purumandala ;

(ii) if twice one āchāmḷa ;

(iii) if three times⁵ ... one upavāsa.

For neglecting the rule of asedhikā, nisedhikā, mithyākāra, nimantarāṇa and *ichchhākāra*⁶ ... one purumandala.

NOTE.—Asedhikā is the utterance of the formula "asahi, asahi, asahi" ; nisedhikā is "nisahi, nisahi, nisahi" ; mithyākāra is "may my fault be annulled" ; to ask for a permissible accessory of san-nyāsa (a gourd, a feather whisk, books or the writing materials), with becoming gentility, is nimantarāṇa ; and ichchhākāra is the spirit of respectful acquiescence in the word of the leader (āchārya).

24—CONCERNING PUPILS AND CASTES

For ordaining a small boy, or a very old person¹ ... from one *pancha kalyā-naka*² to 6 guru māsas.

For ordaining a man of low caste or the son of a slave girl³ ... 6 guru māsas.

For ordaining a pregnant woman or an impotent person⁴ ... from 6 guru māsas to *mūla*⁵ ;

For ordaining a *pariah*¹⁰ ... mūla.

1 §. 68. 2 §. 122. 3 Ichchhākāra is the respectful acquiescence in the word of the āchārya (Leader), and veneration for his person. 4 §. 250. 5 §. 121. 6 §. 122. 7 §. 223.

8 §. 127. 9 §. 237. 10 §. 241.

For going into another gachcha (community) of saints than one's own, that is, the one in which one was ordained¹ ... chheda of half of one's seniority.

NOTE.—If the mūla has been incurred by the āchārya himself in this connection, he will nevertheless observe only some form of fasting instead of it.²

For ordaining a tried and experienced officer of the state at a time when his services are indispensable for the public good³ ... pāranchika parihāra.

For accepting the duly ordained and well-qualified pupil of another āchārya (Leader)⁴ one pancha kalyānaka.

For ordaining knowingly a man of no kula (family), from conceit of one's ṛiddhis (miraculous powers), or from the desire to increase the number of one's pupils, if the pupil is given up⁵ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

For ordaining a man of an untouchable caste under the above circumstances⁶ ... 2 pancha kalyānakas.

For not dissociating with a pupil of no kula (family) when the fact is discovered⁷ ... cessation of intercourse.

NOTE.—No penalty is incurred in case of ignorance, if the pupil be given up. It would appear from śloka 105—108 of the Chulika that Sūdras are not allowed to aspire to saintly life; but under śloka
No. 154 of the same Book those of the Sūdras at whose place the men of the three higher varṇas may dine or in whose vessels they may drink water (termed Bhojya kārūṣ) may rise as high as the highest step on the householder's path. Whether this distinction is scientific or only social, adopted under stress of persecution or ridicule from the men of the more widely-prevalent caste-ridden rival sect, is not quite clear. The probability is in favour of the latter view, especially as śloka 113 of the Chulika would seem to exclude from sainthood all those persons who are not born of parents of the 5 Ch. 105—110 and 113. 6 Ch. 110. 7 Ch. 109.

For ditto when done under the influence of mild passions¹... .. one kalyānaka.

For bringing oneself in touch with the flame, that is, warming oneself, while warming a sick brother or heating an utensil for his use² 5 nivṛkṛtis.

For ditto when done repeatedly² ... one kalyānaka.

For lighting a fire under the orders of the physician

(i) without consulting the sick saint³... one pancha kalyānaka;

(ii) at the desire of the latter

(a) for the lighter of the fire .. one kalyānaka.

(b) for the sick saint (on recovery)⁴ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

For eating more than he should, or for partaking of the objectionable "multi-souled" vegetables, such as onions, when sick⁵ one kalyānaka.

For using unclean things, e.g., a bone, even though only once⁶ one pancha kalyānaka.

For applying medicine to one's own wound in any other than the rainy season⁷ ... one kalyānaka.

NOTE.—In the rainy season no penalty is incurred by the saint as the danger of complications is too great then.

For the use of pure (life-less) medicines, with full care,

(i) in case of unbearable suffering ... expression of regret;

(ii) when the pain is not unbearable⁸ ... one kalyānaka.

For the above (a) where the malady is not unbearable and the medicine is not used with due care⁹ one pancha kalyānaka;

1 §. 42. 2 §. 43. 3 §. 44. 4 §. 45.

5 §. 47. 6 §. 51. 7 §. 198. 8 §. 80.

(b) where the medicine is not used with full care, but the malady is unbearable (serious)¹ ... one kalyāṇaka.

For disregarding a doubt as to the 'purity' of the drugs used² ... one ekasthāna.

For rubbing, crushing or grinding a number of pure (life-less) things³ ... self-censure.

For the above in case the things are endowed with life (fresh or green)² ... one upavāsa.

For washing pots collected together for nursing sick saints³

(i) when their number is very great ... one ṣaṣṭha ;

(ii) when their number is large ... one upavāsa ;

(iii) when they are not very many ... one ekasthāna ;

(iv) when they are only a few ... one āchāmīa.

For approving of nursing and assisting in the feeding of sick saints, for keeping, washing, packing up, etc., the articles that are useful in nursing sick saints and for bringing approved kind of food for a sick saint, when done for a whole week⁴... pratikramaṇa.

For taking a purgative or something to cause vomiting to cure oneself⁵ ... pratikramaṇa and an upavāsa.

For neglecting to nurse and serve a sick saint⁶ ... pratikramaṇa.

NOTE.—There is no penance for taking such medicinal things as āmlā (hog plum), haṭa (a kind of myrobalan), baheṛā (another kind of myrobalan), in illness. Similarly, there is no penalty for taking things like mangoes, tamarind, karondās (corinda; carissa carandus), vīlvakhanda, that is, bel (wood apple), lemon (or citron) when unwell.⁷

1 Ś. 80. 2 Ś. 82. 3 Ś. 100. 4 Ch. 98. 5 Ch. 100.

6 Ś. 192. 7 Ś. 46.

It would appear from the language of śloka 47 that no expiation is incurred if a sick saint take such medicinal and breath-purifying spices as cardamums, cloves and betelnuts.¹ The saint is expressly allowed to use such things as a pin or needle, or an instrument for lifting pots and kettle from the fire.² There is also no penalty for the use of a wooden plank or seat, a mat or gourd or a hollow utensil.³

No penalty is incurred by entertaining sympathy for a co-religionist, or for serving the owner of the resting place or the giver of food in his sickness, provided living 'matter' is not handled.⁴ No penance is likewise required for attending, with due carefulness, on a co-religionist layman, or even on the people of another faith, when sick.⁵

No penance is necessary for putting on clothes, for sleeping on a cot, for massaging the bodily limbs and for applying or rubbing oil on the body, when done to alleviate pain.⁶ Similarly, no penalty is incurred by the use of a pillow and the covering up of the head or the chest with the feather-whisk, during illness.⁷ If a saint who is unwell put on shoes, or use an umbrella made of leaves to protect his head against the sun, no penance is indicated.⁸

26—CONCERNING ACCESSORIES (Upakarana)

The accessories for "sense-control" are of three kinds:

- (1) of the most 'valuable' type—Books
- (2) of the middling type—the feather-whisk and the gourd,⁸
- (3) of the lower type—writing materials.

The penance for losing them is as follows⁹ :—

For losing those of the greatest utility	... one fast.
For those of the middling utility	... one āchāmla .
For those of the lower utility	... one purumandala .

1 Ś. 47. 2 Ś. 51. 3 Ś. 52. 4 Ś. 106. 5 Ś. 107.

6 Ś. 73. 7 Ś. 75.

8 Some authorities place the gourd in the third class. 9 Ś. 53.

F. 8

For suffering, through carelessness, any of the accessories to be destroyed or rendered unserviceable ¹ one 'pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—According to another text the penance is only

- (1) for the destruction of the accessory of the highest utility one 2 days' fast;
- (2) for one of the middling utility one fast;
- (3) for one of the lower utility ¹ one āchāmla.

For using things endowed with life (green leaves and the like) in the preparation of a feather-whisk, book, etc.² one kalyānaka.

For working unremittingly for the period of four months² for the preparation of an accessory one kalyānaka.

Do. by neglecting the scriptural study² one pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penance is necessary where the things are pure. (lifeless), and none where the work is done in the leisure intervals.

For neglecting the rule of nimantaraṇa, that is, making a request for a gourd, a feather-whisk, a book or the writing materials, with becoming meekness ³ one purumandala.

For not cleaning the gourd after every fortnight⁴ one upavāsa and pratikramaṇa.

NOTE.—The saint is required to clean the gourd once every fortnight, to keep it free from insect-life.

For helping oneself (taking without its being given) ⁵

- (a) a book or books one laghu māsa;
- (b) a feather-whisk one kalyānaka;
- (c) a gourd or any other object of the lowest utility, e.g., a writing pen one purumandala.

1 §. 54. 2 §. 78.

3 §. 122. 4 Ch. 88. 5 §. 123.

28—CONCERNING MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS

SPECIAL RULES APPLICABLE TO NUNS

The nun is entitled generally to all the forms of penance, excepting sthāpanā (parihāra).¹ She may be required to observe the fasting penances even beyond the usual limit of six months that has been fixed for this age. But in that case the penance would terminate at the end of the seventh month.¹ The nun is also not to be given the pinchha, the chheda and the mūla penances.¹ Nor is she to be given a dina-pratimā (a whole day's kāyotsarga) or the trai-kāla yoga (kāyotsarga for the three periods, namely, morning, noon and evening).²

The special penalties applicable to her case are given below.

For washing, or cleaning, the clean as well as unclean utensils³ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—No penance is required to be undergone when the nun only washes those utensils that are used in vaiyāvrita (attending on sick saints).³

For washing the pots separately, to make them look neat, whether they be clean or unclean⁴ one pancha kalyānaka.

For washing pots and pans not besmeared with food, along with those so besmeared⁵ one pancha kalyānaka.

1 §. 158. 2 Ch. 114. 3 §. 102.

4 §. 101. 5 §. 102.

For cleaning (rubbing) the teeth, by deliberately disregarding the Scriptural injunction to the contrary ¹	avoidance of rasas milk, curd, ghee , oil, sugar and salt) for a period of six months.

 medicine-pots, lighting a fire, and the like¹ from one kāyotsarga to one pancha kalyānaka (according to the scale involved).

For washing clothes² ... one upavāsa.

For washing the plate and saucer used in eating² ... one kāyotsarga.

For keeping a third piece of cloth, besides the two allowed³ ... one pancha kalyānaka.

NOTE.—Nuns are to accept (whether asked for or not) two pieces of cloth to cover their upper and lower limbs, and a bowl in which they are to fetch food from the place of a layman.⁴

For sleeping, walking, or going in the company of a young saint (for a young nun), and for performing kāyotsarga with him⁵ thirty fasts.

NOTE.—A woman is considered youthful up to the age of sixty years.⁶ This is from the point of view of propriety, and the observance of the rule of celibacy. But it is not objectionable for a nun to live with and walk, etc., in the company of her own father and brother.⁶

SPECIAL RULES FOR HOUSEHOLDERS

The householders (laymen) are of eleven types according to the number of the pratimās to which they might attain as laymen. But they are divided into three classes for the purposes of penance. The jaghanya (small, i.e., inferior) class covers the first six pratimās; the middling (madhyama), those from the seventh to the ninth, and the utkrīṣṭa (superior), the last two. The rule is that half the penance of the saint's is to be given to the superior layman ; half of that to the middling; and half of that half to the inferior householder.¹ According to another rule, half of the saint's penance should be fixed for the superior type of the layman, a third of his (the saint's) for the middling type, and a quarter, for the inferior class.² In the case of the superior laymen, who have deserved it, the mūla penance should be taken, as far as possible, from the same preceptor (saint) who had originally initiated them.³

Special or additional rules applicable to the inferior class of laymen are as follows :—

For killing a cow, a woman, a child, a vir-tuous layman and a saint⁴ ...

... mahāmaha (special worship of the God Arhant) in addition to the other penance.

For killing a cow¹ ... 11 fasts preceded and followed by a ṣaṣṭha.

NOTE.—The layman is also required to eat rice-water with rice grains (kāñjī) on the intervening days, between the fasts, from his hand (not in a plate).² He should also live controlling his senses, and perform pratīkramaya three times—morning, noon and evening—daily, followed by a kūyotsarga of 300 full “breaths,” and should also perform one kūyotsarga at night.³

For killing a woman¹ ... twice the penance provided for the killing of a cow.

For killing a child ... twice the penance for killing a woman.

For killing a man ... twice of that for a child.

For killing a man devoted to one of the wrong faiths ... twice that for killing a man.

For killing a Brāhmaṇa ... twice that for killing a person devoted to a wrong faith.

For killing a Jaina layman ... twice that for killing a Brāhmaṇa.

For killing a Jaina saint⁴ ... twice that for killing a Jaina layman.

NOTE.—On the termination of the penance the transgressor should bathe in the washing of a consecrated Jaina Statue, worship the God Arhant, and give away suitable gifts of four kinds to the deserving people.⁵ He should shave off his hair and then enter his house.⁶ The four kinds of gifts are the gifts of food, medicine, knowledge and ‘protection.’

For killing two-sensed, three-sensed and four-sensed forms of life⁷ ... one fast.

⁵ Ch. 144. ⁶ Ch. 145. ⁷ Ch. 146.

For the violation of the second, third, fourth and fifth vows ¹	one ṣaṣṭha .
For the transgressions of the guṇa and sikṣhā vows ¹	one upavāsa .
For defiling faith or knowledge ¹	the worship of the Jīna (Arhant).

NOTE.—There are five different degrees of transgressions which should be kept in mind in awarding the penance :—

- (1) atikarma which is the sinful intent;
- (2) vyatikarma which signifies preparation for the act;
- (3) atichāra which is the doing of something in the nature of a step towards its commission;
- (4) anāchāra which is the 'regretful' violation of a vow;
- (5) abhoga which means abandoning oneself to the vice.

The example of an old bull that would like to graze in a paddock is given in the Scripture to illustrate these differences. The intention to graze is atikarma; if the animal put his muzzle in a hole in the field's boundary to get to the grass it would be vyatikarma; if he jump over the wall, it would be atichāra; if he pull one mouthful and jump out again it would be anāchāra; but if he begins to graze at leisure and pleasure, that is fearlessly, it would be abhoga. These five kinds of transgressions apply to all the twelve vows of the layman.¹ In awarding penance notice might well be taken of these classes and sub-classes of sins.

For taking (eating or drinking) semen, urine, faeces, honey, flesh, wine, and improper (abhiakshya) food ¹

- (a) through indifference or ignorance ... one ṣaṣṭha ;
(b) deliberately (rather boastingly) ... twelve fasts.

For eating the five kinds of udambaras

- (a) through indifference or negligence ... one fast.
(b) deliberately ¹ ... twelve fasts

NOTE.—This is applicable to the case of an inferior layman.

For touching (needlessly) the corpse of a man who has been killed or who has died of an accident, or a body with a festering sore, full of worms ² ... 6 fasts.

For co-habiting with one's daughter, mother, sister, or other nearly related females, or with a pariah or a base-born girl ³ ... 32 fasts.

For purchasing stolen property ⁴ ... one kalyāṇaka.

NOTE.—No penance is necessary if the things are purchased without guilty intent, e.g., when more costly things are mixed up with less costly ones, without regard to price, and are purchased at one rate.

For taking more food than one can eat

- (a) if enough to make a whole meal is left ... one upavāsa ;
(b) if a half or a third of a whole meal is left ... one āchāṃla ;
(c) in all other cases ⁵ ... one purumandala.

NOTE.—The above rule is given in the text amongst the rules applicable to saints. It does not however apply to a saint, but might do so to the case of a nun. It can also apply to the case of a householder of the type of a kṣullaka. The kṣullakas are the superior type of lady who retain only one piece of cloth; they do not eat

⁴ S. 49. ⁵ S. 55.

F. 9.

standing; nor do they practise the ātāpana,¹ the *ṛikṣha*² mūla and the *abhrāvākāśha*³ yoga austerities.⁴ The kshullaka belonging to the three higher varṇas (castes) who claim purity of descent on both the paternal and maternal sides, that is to say, both of whose parents are of the same varṇa, is entitled to be admitted into sannyāsa if he wishes to observe the sallekhanā vow; but not if he be descended from a mixed marriage, even though of the higher varṇas.⁵ The instance of Prince Abhaya Kumar, however, shows this practice to be of recent origin as already noted. Only a bhojya śudra can be allowed to become a kshullaka and an ellaka, not the abhojya ("the uneatable with").⁶ The kshullaka may get himself shaved or have his hair cut with scissors, or pluck them out with his own hands; he may eat from his own hand or from a plate. He wears only one piece of cloth.⁷ The ellaka is the superior type of the kshullaka who retains only the loin-strip.

THE PERIOD OF UNCLEANNESS

The following periods have been fixed for uncleanness' consequent on death :—

For the death of a sva-jana (literally own man)

(a) if a Brāhmaṇa	5 days
(b) if a Kshatriya	10 days
(c) if a Vaiśya ⁸	12 days

NOTE.—According to other āchāryas, a Brāhmaṇa becomes clean after ten days; and a Kshatriya after only five days. There is no uncleanness if the dead sva-jana, be a child, or a man belonging to a wrong faith who has performed sannyasa marana (sallekhanā). There is no need for observing the rule of uncleanness when a person dies of drowning or by fire.⁹

¹ The ātāpana is a form of yoga austerity in which the yogi remains in the sun for a period fixed.

² The ṛikṣha mūla is another form of yoga austerity in which the yogi remains under a tree for a fixed period.

³ The abhrāvākāśha signifies a form of austerity in which the yogi spends all his time in but not under shade.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS.

The significance of the special terms used in the appendix is as follows:

Half-fast means taking only one meal in twenty-four hours.

Abhiṣeka signifies bathing the Statue of the Tirthamkara (in the Temple) with water.

Kalaśābhiṣeka is the bathing of the Statue with a big pitcherful of water, ceremoniously.

Pañchāmṛitābhiṣeka is the bathing of the Tirthamkara's Statue with milk, curd, sugar-cane juice, ghee (clarified butter) and the water of dried herbs.

Tirtha means worshipping at a Tirtha (place of pilgrimage).

Mukkula means a great worship ritual.

Niṣka=a measure of gold which may be 4 or 9 or 16 mashas (i.e., 64, 144 or 256 grains) in weight.

Pala=4 tolas, that is, $1\frac{1}{2}$ ounces in weight.

Bhojana means feeding the number of men indicated.

Cow, grain, śrikhanda, niṣka and betel leaves are to be given as gifts to the deserving or to some one appointed in this behalf.

Udambaras are the fruits of certain trees which contain milky juice or sap. These are regarded as objectionable as a very large number of group-souls are found in them.

Śrikhanda means a kind of pudding or sweetmeat.

Kāru Śudras are those members of the Śudra class at whose place men of the other three varṇas can dine without objection.

Jina-pūjā means the ritualistic worship of the Lord Arhant, which begins with abhiṣeka (bathing) and ends, usually, with stuti (adoration).
